

Kevin Anson graduated from Auburn University with a Master of Science in Fisheries and Allied Aquacultures. He worked for a private aquaculture company in Belize, Central America, for five years prior to joining the staff of the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources/Marine Resources Division where he has worked as a biologist before being promoted to Chief of the Fisheries Section.

During his tenure with the Marine Resources Division, Anson has supervised various recreational data collection programs, administered federal grants, and served as the Division's coordinator for boating access and artificial reef activities.