

Doug Gregory spent most of his youth in Key West, and he has been involved in fisheries for over 35 years. During his career, Gregory worked as a fishery biologist for NMFS Northwest and Alaska Fishery Center in Seattle, spent seven years as a staff biologist for the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council, is a former Florida Sea Grant Marine Agent, and a long-time member/past chairman of the Council's Scientific and Statistical Committee. He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in zoology, a Master of Science degree in wildlife and fisheries ecology, and Bachelor of Science degree in statistics.

Gregory is an avid diver, spear fisherman, and recreational fisherman.